

We now look at a major revolution in China's history. The seeds of China's late twentieth century political thought were planted during this time.

Read Chapter 30, section 3: Imperial China Collapses. Read pages 882 through 886 Upon completion, answer the following questions in complete sentences.

1. Whose reforms had a greater appeal to the peasants? Why?
2. How did the Treaty of Versailles trigger the May Fourth Movement?
3. How was Mao's vision of communism different from that of Lenin?
4. What started the civil war in China?
5. What caused the Communist revolutionary movement in China to gain strength?
6. If the long march had failed, do you think the Nationalist party would have been successful in uniting the Chinese? Why or Why Not?